HIGH PRAISE GIVEN BUCKS COUNTY FOR BLACK OUT RESULTS

Colonel Churchill Williams
Claims County Co-operation
Is 100 Per Cent

SOME WERE TARDY

Minor Violations Are Due To Misunderstandings; People
Anxious To Comply

Seventeen hundred air wardens and 2500 emergency police took their posts throughout Bucks County last evening, when the second blackout test for the county was held.

Colonel Churchill Williams, executive director of Bucks County Council of Defense, had only the highest praise for Bucks County residents for their co-operation, when on this occasion Bucks County and six other counties, together with Philadelphia, staged a test.

The test, insofar as Bucks County was concerned, was an improvement over the first all-county test held on January 18th, co-ordination being improved, state county officials. No arrests were reported.

The moon brightened the entire area, and with street and house lights out, residents could more readily understand why the enemy would choose a moonlight night for any attacks from the air.

There were but a few scattered instances throughout the county of violations, and in most cases they were due to misunderstandings.

REPORTER IN PLANE OBSERVES BLACKOUT

Flies Over Wide Area and Pronounces Blackout
Perfect

COVERS LARGE AREA

Army officials and city and state defense authorities today hailed as "practically perfect" the first major blackout in the East which plunged Philadelphia and seven adjoining counties into darkness for 15 minutes last night.

Military and civilian spokesmen agreed that the barest minimum of man-made light flickered over a 3500-square mile area during the test. Millions of dollars worth of defense orders are being rushed in the metropolitan region embracing 3,000,000 persons.

An International News Service reporter observing the dramatic scene from an Eastern Airlines transport plane declared the blackout, allowing for defense plants which did not participate, was "99 per cent perfect."

Although citizens co-operated wholeheartedly with the drill, he reported, tops of many tall structures were silhouetted by a full winter moon and a star-light sky. Also revealed, he said, were the symmetrical avenues of unlighted streets patterned long ago by William Penn.

For 10 minutes before until 10 minutes after the blackout, the plane placed at the disposal of Philadelphia's mayor Bernard Samuel by Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Airlines—circled the cities of Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., at a cruising speed of 180 miles an hour and an altitude of 2,500 feet.

Covered by the blackout, which was designed to guide future defense of this vital area against Axis bombers, were Philadelphia, Delaware, Chester, Bucks and Montgomery counties in Eastern Pennsylvania, and Camden, Gloucester and Burlington Counties in southern New Jersey.

From the plane, the shining ribbons of the Delaware and Schuylkill Rivers reflected in the moonlight but no moving vehicles could be seen. The blacked-out Philadelphia Navy Yard—most vital defense plant of all—was not visible from the air.

Not a single serious crime was reported in the entire area and accidents were at a minimum—although one man was killed in a fall. Some persons

LATEST WAR BULLETINS

MacArthur Repulses New Attack

Washington—Despite a plight conceded to be critical, Gen. MacArthur's forces, aided by a freshly formed battalion of Bluejackets and Marines, reported today that they had repulsed another Japanese attack on their left flank. The latest attack was another of a series made under cover of darkness and MacArthur reported to the War Department that it was "sharply repulsed."

Meanwhile, the Philippine defenders continued to mop up tattered remnants of Japanese which had landed on the west coast of Bataan and infiltrated behind the American lines.

The defenders not only prevented the main Japanese force from sending reinforcements to their advance units but MacArthur's forces captured most of the food and ammunition dropped to the enemy fighters by parachute. Nevertheless, in the face of the valiant efforts of the defenders, the conviction grew in Washington today that the situation on the Bataan Peninsula can be considered nothing less than serious for the American-Philippine forces.

The Japs are reported to have a ten to one superiority in manpower and appear determined to wipe out the American-Philippine army regardless of cost in blood and materiel.

Expect Jap Attempt To Invade Singapore

Tokyo—By official Japanese wireless—An indication that the anticipated Japanese attempt to invade Singapore Island may begin at almost any moment was circulated by the Domei news agency today.

A dispatch said that in view of the Japanese readiness to attack Singapore, military authorities have advised the civilian population to evacuate Johore Bahru, Malayan city at the southern tip of the Johore Sultanate.

Imperial Forces Quit Derna

London—The war bulletin in Cairo today was authoritatively interpreted as meaning that imperial forces have quit the vital supply port of Derna in Northern Libya.

That means, it was said, that the right flank of the British army has withdrawn 50 miles from Sonta in two days, while the left flank, consisting of mobile columns, is still operating in the desert northeast of Msus, which presents an "unusual military situation."

Stoney Point School Is Sold To A New York Man

PLEASANT VALLEY, Feb. 4—At a public sale held by the Springfield Township School Board in the high school building, Saturday, the Stoney Point school house was offered for sale, and after a lively period of bidding was sold to Edgar H. Burman, New York City, an insurance consultant, who expects to convert the building into a summer home.

The school building has been unused for the past seven or eight years, but is in good condition.

The location of the building in the center of half an acre of ground, along the Springtown-Harrow state highway, it is said, is ideal for a residence of the type contemplated by the purchaser.

Miscellaneous Gifts Are Presented To Mrs. Freund

HULMEVILLE, Feb. 4—Mrs. William Freund, the former Miss Mary Thompson, was the guest of honor last evening at a shower arranged by members of the Peppy Pals Club, hostesses being Mrs. C. Wesley Haefner and Miss Elma E. Haefner. The surprise affair was held at the home of the latter.

A heart containing verses informed the feteed one that this was an "alarm" shower, and that she should listen for the sound of alarm clock bells. Alarms set a few minutes apart led her to the places where miscellaneous gifts were hidden.

Refreshments were served, the table decorations being carried out in pink. Others attending were: Mrs. Walter Jackson, Mrs. Harry Beck, the Misses Adeline E. Reetz and Marie Hanson, Hulmeville; Mrs. Harold H. Haefner, Cornwells Heights.

IF YOUR BOY IS IN THE SERVICE, FLY A FLAG

Let the "Home Folks" Back-
Up Every Lad Who Serves
His Country

EASY WAY TO GET FLAG

Does your boy who is in service know there is a definite show of patriotism at home? Do you have an American flag, and is it flying daily?

Every lad who is in the service should most certainly be "backed up" by a display of colors by his family! It would please him, and you would know you were doing your small part to help bolster morale.

Every home should display the American flag, but especially those from which the young men have entered the U. S. armed forces. While the boys are in training in the camps, while they are at sea on cruisers or destroyers, or while battling in foreign lands, it would be a great comfort to them to know that at their homes, where loved ones are still safe and sound, beloved "Old Glory" is flying to the breeze.

The Bristol Courier is making acquisition of an American flag exceptionally easy. All that is necessary for subscribers to The Bristol Courier to do is to clip six consecutively numbered coupons from The Bristol Courier, and present them together with 85 cents at the office of The Courier, and the flag is theirs. Any subscriber desiring the complete set, consisting of flag, measuring 60x36

One Man's Opinion

By Walter Kiernan

I. N. S. Staff Writer

They are talking again about "parity" in Washington.

You cannot touch, taste or smell parity. It is a nothing-something like a glibak.

A glibak is what you stumble over on the sidewalk when there is nothing there.

Parity is planted and nurtured by farm congressmen but nobody ever harvests it.

Parity means equality. It is something somebody always is promising to give to farmers.

This is a congressional election year and a new crop of parity is being sowed on Capitol Hill.

In November it will turn out to be milk weed.

Correction on paragraph two—you can smell parity.

Thought for the day: Parity for President.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Parasites

Washington, Feb. 3. NO one wants—particularly in a time of war—to defend that the social parasites whom Mr. Roosevelt accuses of crowding Washington are utterly insignificant compared to the political parasites for whom he is personally responsible.

Expanding the definition of parasites, as he did, to make it include those who clutter up the city without performing any useful function, he indicts his own Administration. Perhaps, if he had realized this he would not have brought the subject up—even if he had to miss the gratification of a stimulating press conference.

THE truth is that never in the history of the country has anyone conceived of so vast an army of useless individuals as are now on the Government pay rolls. This was true before the defense organization was set up in 1940. In the eight years following 1932 the New Deal created so many new boards, commissions, agencies and authorities

The Board instructed the Property Committee to investigate the various kinds of tape used for window protection in air raids. The Committee was authorized to procure the necessary protection for those windows where it is thought that such protection is needed.

REVIVAL OF BICYCLING

Perhaps it isn't accurate to speak of revival of bicycling as a consequence of the war. That had taken place before the guns began booming in Poland. But the war has done something to the bike and its riders.

A familiar sight these days is persons who thought they had long since passed their cycling days pedaling along the streets to or from their work or, in the case of the ladies, on their social or shopping rounds.

Before the war is ended many others will join them. When tires begin to blow and other mischances begin to befall the old bus the demand for a two-wheel vehicle will jump apace. Those who cannot ride will be compelled to walk, and there's where the bicycle fits in.

To many people not absolutely dependent on motor vehicle transportation the necessity for more walking and pedaling may be a blessing, in a manner of speaking, at that. Physical fitness in war-time, with its added strains both physical and mental is a prime requisite. Either cycling or walking is a fine conditioner.

As the priorities system is extended to more and more commodities, opportunities for participation in sports will decrease. Before long the supply of golf and tennis balls may be scant. Americans may emerge from this war healthier than they went in.

INVASION ATROCITIES

Reports of atrocious mistreatment of both soldiers and civilians left in the path of the Japanese army that is attempting to occupy the Philippines have naturally angered the American people. The American policy which General MacArthur is following is to respect the international rules of warfare, which implement the impulses of humane people.

It is hard for Americans to understand, impossible for them to condone, the abuse and torturing of helpless civilians and military prisoners.

But American standards of humanity and decency mean nothing in the dictatorial mind. A Hitler who murders his political opponents by the score does not hesitate to resort to murder in the subjugation of the peoples of occupied countries. And a Japanese military clique that rules the country under German influence is not likely to give a second thought to enlightened ideas about honor and compassion in the treatment of prisoners and hostages.

The bloodthirsty lust of the Axis leadership is one of the evils that the Allied powers are trying to sweep out of the world. It must be suffered as long as the savage monsters who control Germany and Japan and Italy have the power to terrorize their victims. Pity for the victims of Axis barbarism saddens every American heart, but the common sense of the people prevails to leave a grim determination to fit the punishment to the crime.

In the current war dispatches, the Nazis are "straightening" their lines in Russia and MacArthur is "shortening" his lines in the Philippines, but all this is preliminary to the final communiqués of the war: Yanks mopping up the Axis tripe.

The impression continues to grow that De Gaulle will keep those islands off the Canadian coast. Secretary Hull notwithstanding.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

The German stiffened, got to his feet and paced the floor, all the while wiping his monocle industriously. Finally he spoke, and his voice was now soft, insinuating, hateful. "So, you believe in freedom, well, well." Then he turned on David and his sharp face went livid with anger. In a raised voice he fairly shouted, "Your freedom is ended. Soon England will beg us on her knees for peace. And then, by Himmel, the American! Nazi Germany will dominate the world."

The man's no idiot, Hutch thought, merely a fanatic. He really seemed to believe what he was saying, and as he spoke on it was apparent that he had forgotten the presence of a second person in the room. It was as if he were practicing a speech to be delivered at a political rally.

"We, the great German folk, superior to all other folk, will dominate. The fools who think they can oppose the will of Adolf Hitler. The fools who think they can oppose our might. The English fools—the American fools! Ha!" Again he began pacing violently back and forth across the room. "We lost the battle of 1918, yes. But now we are a different Germany, a Germany strong, united, and led by Adolf Hitler. The battle of 1940 is a different matter. We will dominate the world."

Hutchinson coughed and the officer turned as if surprised. "Ah! I had forgotten you were here. You may go. I shall keep your papers."

As Hutch passed Rusty he was able to whisper, "No funny business. You'll get solitary confinement." The chateau was a two story building built around three sides of a square. Across the fourth side ran a high grille fence, and one passed over a very ancient drawbridge to enter. It had evidently been built in troublous times with a thought for defense. At present it made an excellent military prison, and as the two women were escorted inside both were thinking the same thing—that escape would be most difficult from such a place. The only windows gave onto the court, the outside walls being blank and solid.

At least they were to be allowed to remain together, and when they were finally left alone they began to look around the room to which they had been assigned.

"Looks as though we had company," Rusty observed. There were four cots in the room and over two of them hung the belongings of French officers. On one military cap there was the single stripe of a second lieutenant, and on the other two stripes of a first lieutenant.

"At least they're young," Hutch said, after he had pointed this out to his friend.

The room was not large, and it was very sombre, no sunlight penetrating there at any time of the day. There were the four cots, and by each cot a kitchen chair. In the center of the room stood a bare table over which hung a single electric bulb with no globe or shade. The floor was of large stones, worn away at places by the tread of feet over the centuries, and the only rug was a square, moth-eaten affair under the table. The walls were bare except where nails had been driven into them, to serve as clothes hooks, near the cots, and they had recently been whitewashed. Hutch said he believed the place had been temporarily arranged by the French as a hospital before the invasion.

"Let's look it over thoroughly," the American said, "before our room mates return."

The Great Game of Politics

that the number of jobholders in the District of Columbia had more than doubled. With 133,615 civilian employees in Washington, this Administration exceeded in peacetime by more than 16,000 the pay-roll record of the Wilson Administration in 1918, when the first World War was at its peak. Since June 30, 1940, more than 80,000 additional employees have been added to the rolls in Washington. They are now going on at the rate of a thousand a week. Before the war has gone another year the number of civilian Government employees in the District will approximate 300,000.

THIS just does not make sense. It has no relation whatever to efficiency. Actually, the sheer size of the organization make inefficiency inevitable. The truth is that the machine is so cumbersome, clogged up and unwieldy that its progress is painful and its direction uncertain. From the beginning, the President has imposed no restriction on—and made no effort to restrict—the size of the multitudinous defense agencies established. Naturally, no one else has. Every head has had practically a free hand as to the number of employees he could appoint and the salaries he could pay.

THE result has been fantastic. All sense of proportion has been lost. These alphabetical agencies just swell and swell and swell. The publicity army is the best illustration.

There are now 2,895 full-time Government press agents and 31,615 on part-time. There are more than a thousand individuals on the White House executive staff. No one knows how many there are under the Price Administration, or in the O.C.D. or in any of the others. The pressure from Congressmen and politicians to put more on never relaxes.

IN the creation of a great war machine a certain amount of confusion, of course, is inevitable. No one expects a perfectly functioning organization without any duplication and with no drones. But, what has happened here is beyond reason. If the President wants to make room for legitimate war workers by driving the parasites out of Washington, the place to start is in his defense organization. He must not only solve the room-shortage problem but he could improve the tone, temper and efficiency of our whole war effort.

Artists' Forum Is To Be Inaugurated At New Hope

An Artists' Forum, a new type of program never before inaugurated, will be the feature of a special Associate Members' Tea of the New Hope Art Associates on Sunday, February 15th, at four p. m., in the New Hope Art Gallery.

The Artists' Forum is the result of demands by Associate Members to know more about painters, methods and materials. A panel of three well-known artists from different fields will take the place of the usual lecturer and this panel will answer and discuss all questions on art submitted to them, each from his own particular standpoint.

The panel will consist of: Daniel Garber, instructor of fine arts, Pennsylvania Academy; Charles Child, president of New Hope Art Associates; Alden Wicks, instructor of fine arts, Hunter College, New York; and Mrs. Dorsey Richardson, New Hope, who, representing the Associate Membership, will read the questions which have been submitted by mail. The forum will also be thrown open to the informal and general discussion when questions from the floor will be answered.

Among the questions already received are the following which will prove interesting topics for debate and clarification: How will the war affect the work of the artist? How can the layman learn to interpret abstract and non-objective art? What influence have modern art forms on American painting?

The February exhibition of the New Hope Art Associates opened on Tuesday, and includes a wide variety of both large and small canvases, making for a well-balanced and representative show of members' work.
